

from the Middle East

Missiles, even when they miss their mark, raises fears as they expose harmlessly. Such an even happened last week when two rockets were fired from the Sinai in Egyptian Territory toward Israel's southern most town of Eilat.

Our Middle East blogger also writes of the obvious hardship and sympathy she has for an Israeli soldier who has been held in unknown conditions incommunicado, even to the Red Cross, for more than 3 years.

Peace in the Middle East is tenuous - very tenuous at best. Read Irene's blog for rest of the story
